NATIONAL PUBLIC WORKS WEEK CELEBRATION
Partnership with local school

Georgetown County is committed to keeping its citizens informed through various educational opportunities. We strive to connect and educate citizens about the work of county government. At the Department of Public Services, it is our hope to inspire a new generation of public servants by concentrating on our youngest citizens.

During the week of May 15-21, 2011, Georgetown County Department of Public Services will be celebrating National Public Works Week. This year the Department of Public Works has chosen to partner with Browns Ferry Elementary school to introduce the children to the wonderful world of Public Works and the many opportunities that can be afforded them through Public Works. On May 18th, the department will give a presentation to the school. The presentation entitled, "I Am Public Works" will consist of short interactive videos and heavy machinery demonstrations. Twelve children, one from each grade, will be chosen by the principal to attend the Backhoe Rodeo on May 19th at 203 Landfill Road. We anticipate continuing this partnership with the school in hopes of fostering interest in Public Works and developing environmentally conscious young adults.
